TO WHOM IT CONCERNS

Last evening I opened a loaf of your whole wheat bread that I had in the freezer. It is fat free and had an expiration date on the tag of August 7, 2007. I noticed a very strong odor as I took out a slice. The odor smelled like nail polish, but I couldn't see anything wrong with the bread or plastic bag. I didn't eat any, but wanted to report the problem.

I have been buying this kind of bread, but now I'm afraid that maybe someone has tampered with it and put something in it. Have you had any problems at your bread plant?

I have put the bread in the freezer again and will be waiting to hear from you. In this day of terrorism, I become very concerned about our food.

Very Concerned,
